Letter from the Editors

Happy Summer, NMLA!

It's a time to relax, maybe take a vacation, or in the case of New Mexico libraries - arrange exciting events for patrons! If you yourself can't take a vacation this summer, consider checking out some of the fabulous events at libraries across the state:

New Friends, New Adventures

The City of Rio Rancho welcomed Jason Shoup as its new Director of Library and Information Services. His first day was June 27th. His library career has moved him between public and academic libraries, and between his home state of Michigan and his adopted home of New Mexico. As a library executive, Jason is interested in building open, engaging and collaborative work cultures that ensure each and every member of the library team know their value and contributions are seen, appreciated and important.

Intellectual Freedom From a Shifting Landscape by Valerie Nye

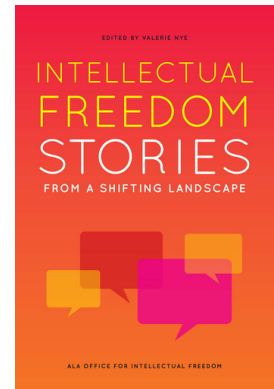

Intellectual Freedom from a Shifting Landscape is a book I edited and published with ALA (2020). Editing, designing, and making decisions about the book's content was made possible with support and an exchange of ideas that included many New Mexico librarians. The book is a collection of stories written by twenty librarians from academic, school, public, and special libraries.

The stories in this book provide encouragement to librarians who are facing challenges and provide evidence that creating proper policy prior to a challenge will help guide the actions that need to occur when a challenge is launched. The stories will also provide an opportunity to generate creative ideas for supporting social justice issues that impact each library's community. The librarians who share their experiences provide real-world examples that can be a rich source of discussion for library staff, boards, and with community members. Conversations about intellectual freedom can be guided by the questions at the end of each chapter to help illuminate the local issues relevant to the shared scenarios.

Stories in the book include a chapter from librarians at the Denver Public Library describing their innovative Social Justice Book Club, an experience from librarians at the University of Wisconsin-Madison about welcoming Black Lives Matter demonstrations, a very personal essay from a librarian about hosting a drag queen story time, and a story about a librarian who turned a canceled author visit into an opportunity to have a series of difficult conversations with her community.

The book is available through the American Library Association Store and from other book sellers (978-0838947265, $49.99).

(2-Day Seminar)

During times of persecution and war, both ordinary and influential people have acted selflessly and with courage and compassion to help others. These people, even under the threat of death, upheld human values in an attempt to save lives and ease the suffering of the innocent. Through their stories, we will see how such men and women of conscience, in the face of brutality, mass murder, and indifference - by their very actions, rescued the dignity of humanity and our faith in universal brotherhood. Such people inspire and empower us, showing that each of us can make a difference. The program series will focus on the Holocaust in WWII, and touch on present day human rights challenges

The New Mexico Battle of the Books Steering Committee is actively seeking volunteers that wish to be instrumental in creating a fun and literary experience for students in 4th through 8th grade. New Mexico Battle of the Books is an annual event in which students who enjoy reading come together to compete with their knowledge of books from the NMBOB lists. The committee meets biannually via Zoom in January and June. Over the course of the year, we work on the tasks necessary to prepare for the event, such as creating book lists, procuring sites to hold the event, and preparing the questions for the battles. It is important work to make Battle of the Books happen.

If you are interested in becoming involved in this important work to promote reading in NM, contact Karin Trujillo at karin.Trujillo@gumdropbooks.com or visit our website <https://nmlibraries.org/battleofthebooks/> for more information.

Summer Food Drive Success

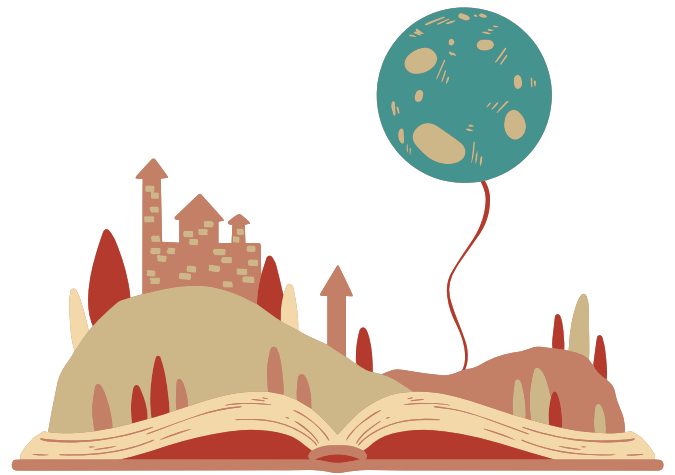

Rio Rancho Public Libraries hosted a food drive to assist the community during the summer when kids are out of school and donations are needed. We partnered with a local food bank, St Felix Pantry, and accepted donations from June 6 through July 1, 2022 at both library locations.

Our theme was "Dive into Giving" to go along with the summer reading program theme of "Oceans of Possibilities." Each library decorated a container for the food donations. St Felix Pantry picked up the food on a couple of occasions; one pickup resulted in 113 pounds, which was over 135 meals. We were thrilled to do the food drive, and St Felix Pantry appreciated the donations.

This summer, the Museum Library has stepped up its offerings for children aged 5-8 with a new program called Art Explored! Story Time at the New Mexico Museum of Art Library. Every Tuesday in June and July, children and their caregivers are invited to take a break in the cool recesses of the Museum Library to listen to a volunteer read from the library's collection of books for children. These titles include works on famous artists, art movements, and creative techniques. Story Time selections introduce young children to art history, the practice of thinking about and looking at art, and the significant role art plays in New Mexican culture.
